

Ladies Day Out Luncheon

September 27th

Thomas Sappington House/The Barn Restaurant

The Thomas Sappington House is one of the oldest brick structures in St. Louis County. Built in 1808 by enslaved people, it is named after its namesake, Thomas Sappington (1783-1843), whose family was one of the first to settle in the county. The house is a well-preserved and rare example of Federal-style architecture in the state. Given its association with Sappington and architecture, the house was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1974. The house is part of a complex that features the research Library of Americana and Decorative Arts, and The Barn restaurant. The site is owned and maintained by the City of Crestwood, and the Sappington House Foundation, conservators for 55 years, operate the facility, with the exception of the restaurant.

We would like to invite you to visit the Thomas Sappington House and Museum and then enjoy lunch at The Barn Restaurant.

Meet at Hooters on South Lindbergh at 11:00 for departure time at 11:15. The plan is to visit the Sappington House Museum and then head over to the restaurant at 12:30 for a 12:45 reservation. If you have already seen this amazing Museum and just want to meet us for lunch that is fine. Also, if meeting us at Hooters is out of your way you can meet us at the restaurant. There is an Overflow Parking area right behind the facility on Reco Avenue. That is where we will be parking the Corvette's or other cars.

Reservations are due by September 18th.

This event is hosted by Valerie Zeisset, Ruth Howard & Joyce Newbauer

Here's a fun fact – Joyce Newbauer is a descendant of Thomas Sappington!
